

Recruitment agency management with website integration

Impact:Recruiter is a recruitment agency management application with employer, candidate and applicant tracking, automated candidate to vacancy matching, website integration, remote and mobile access.

Praised for its ease-of-use, Impact:Recruiter features robust, fully integrated technology delivering critical business intelligence in the field and back office.

Take the grind out of vacancy and candidate matching with automated scoring based on geography, skillsets and occupations.

:: In more detail

Impact:Recruiter has been developed in collaboration with agencies in automotive, public sector and information technology verticals to provide an agency management platform which is easy-to-use and focused on the task of matching and managing applicants.

Take the daily grind out of matching vacancies and candidates with the automated matching technology in Impact:Recruiter, which searches the database to score against user-definable skillsets, occupations and geographical areas. You can cast the net as wide as you need, then track submission of candidates through to acceptance or rejection.

Seamless website integration means that you can automatically publish vacancies on your website as soon as they are available, publish anonymous CVs for employer searches, and send adverts directly to Fish4jobs for publication on their website. Instantly generating responses and building up candidates and vacancies.

You can host the application in-house or outsource it to us, accessing the system via a simple web browser interface. It is web-enabled out of the box, providing remote access from branches, on the road or even from home. It also has a mobile device interface allowing consultants on the road to connect over the mobile phone network and perform candidate or vacancy searches while on site with customers.
